“ Aunt Jean means memories of Christmas with the family...playing in the playroom in the first home, consoling me when I flipped Al off the sea saw, telling me it's alright the first time I slept in Al's bed that had the guard up so we wouldn't fall off. The house she passed in was full of party memories too...letting me eat as many of the small tarts I wanted (lemon was my favorite), letting me eat as many barbecue spare ribs during her summer picnics...she made the best spare ribs! Aunt Jean would whip up cup cakes at Al's request with homemade icing that Al and I would eat on the back porch and on the magnolia tree she would let us climb and sit in for hours. As I got older it was always fun to talk with her and Aunt Helen at the library downtown. As we both continued to get older I always enjoyed our talks as she gardened her flowers and we talked over the fence. I'm sure Aunt Jean and the rest of the family looked over us proudly as everyone enjoyed each other's company at the wake today. To Al...well done. No one could have took better care of the mom who loves you so much! Enjoy heaven Aunt Jean...love, Alice

“ Mrs J was another mother to me while Ally and I navigated our way through the ‘horrors’ of adolescence. She was patient, kind and tolerant. I got a chance to visit her in her advanced stages, 30+ Years later from the last time we met, and was touched at the emotion she exhibited when she saw me. Her love light shined through then as it always did. Until we meet again sweet lady. You were loved.

“ It has been my joy to share the last few years of George and Jean's lives. Truly beautiful people.

There were many challenges that accompanied the transition process.

And there were a few things that accompanied Jean's transition I'd like to share.

The other thing that accompanied Jean every step of the way was Allison.

The unconditional love, care, and compassion they shared during the past years has been amazing to witness. Ever present was the deep authentic love shared between mother and daughter, and the commitment to Jean's well being, through any and all.

Words could never express all the feeling....

And I think Jean knew the same... She said it all with her SMILE...

*All My Love,
Harry*
